"I've asked you... asked you to stop."

A peaceful looking classroom in a school, where is a small society. But there is a rank among the students and also there are allies and foes. They are seventeen years old who get tangled in relation with unlike 'friends' and face the edges of uncontrolled emotions. It makes their life more disordered.

Yeon Si-eun is the top student at the entire school, who has no interest in others than studying, and acts as an outsider voluntarily. Yet, because of his flabby exterior, he became a target of the school bullies. He has not fought by his own will, but he does not avoid if someone pick a fight. His character never giving up and with his unique skill using his brain and tools, he fights against numerous violence in and out of the school. When it becomes being beyond his own ability, he gets help from An Soo-ho, one who sleeps in the school and only sleeps all the time, and Oh Beom-seok, a timid transfer student. With these two, Si-eun gets a feeling that there will be something more special to him than studying. Three boys were being along but now they become 'three besties' to each other, nothing to fear of when they are together.

Nothing similar in appearance, personality, school records and else, three boys, Si-eun, Soo-ho and Beom-seok, fight to protect oneself and each other under the relation with friends. And they learn friendship in their own ways and grow up. However, while everyone even the newly joined runaway girl is giving all the attention to Si-eun being a 'hero', and cool, easygoing Soo-ho, Beom-seok's jealousy and inferiority complex rises. The friendship among three begins to crack...

"What if a NBSB engineering student and the best-looking top model become college sweethearts?"

Once called as wonder child, Joo Ki-eok was a talented kid in mathematics but now became an ordinary college student majoring computer engineering. She did not stand out in her love life so far, and she was continuing her NBSB (No Boyfriend Since Birth) life just like typical nerdy engineering student. While Ki-eok lives a life far distant from romantic relationship, the university she attended suffered from the financial shortage and decided to merge majors in unprecedented way. So, in never-seen and never-heard way, the computer engineering department, which are full of nerds, and the modeling department, where the most popular students are, were merged. Under the new major with the weirdest name, 'Fusion Physical Technology Global Content Development Department,' two most different groups of people entangled.

Ki-eok had neither clue nor interest in fashion as well as dressing up at all. Therefore, she tries to stay away from the model classmates and live quietly, but she happens to run into the top model from the modeling major, Min-hak. He is the best-looking man who even makes Ki-eok's heart pounding, who never ever thought about the dating. Ki-eok considers her trembling heart just as a prank of hormones and a kind of biological, chemical reaction. She thinks that there is nothing to do with Min-hak after all and predicates that he has no interest in her. But the fate it is, Min-hak shows his interest in Ki-eok who is smart and easy-going. They happen to be in a same team for the department's grand event, 'Fusion Application Contest' and getting closer and closer. Although these two are totally different from head to toe, they decide to find answers together to the unanswerable question: love.
